Pre-Reading Questions

With the book in hand, discuss the following questions with the child.

Observe the front cover:

- Consider the girl holding a conch shell.
 - How does girl feel? How do you know?
 - Look closely at the sleeves of her dress. What do you notice? What do her torn sleeves tell you about this girl?
 - What do think about the shell in her hands? Is it important to her? How do you know?

- Consider the people working outside.
 - Who are they?
 - What are they doing?
 - Is the girl related to them?
 - How do they feel?

- Consider the building where the girl is standing.
 - What kind of a place is this?
 - Is it her home?
 - Why are there no curtains on that window?
 - Why is the wood rugged and unpainted?

- Consider the title of the book – Hope's Gift.
 - Who is Hope?
 - What is the gift mentioned in the title?
 - Where do you think she got this shell?
 - Does it belong to her or someone else?

- Consider the two names printed on the lower right.
 - Kelly Starling Lyons is the author of Hope's Gift. Do you know what an author does?
 - Don Tate is the illustrator of Hope's Gift. Do you know what an illustrator does?
 - Do you think you might like to become an author?
 - Do you think you might like to become an illustrator?

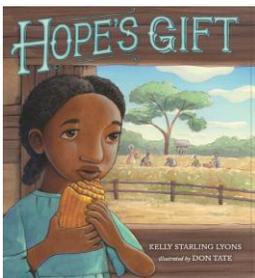

Observe the back cover:

- Consider the girl holding the conch shell.
 - What is she doing?
 - Have you ever held a conch shell to your ear? If so, what did you hear?

- How does this girl feel?
- Consider the line of people at the bottom of the page.
 - What are they doing?
 - How do they feel?
 - Why do you think they have been illustrated using gray tones?

Read the words written at the top of the page – A poignant story celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation.

- What do you think these words mean?
 - Do you know what 'celebrating' means?
 - Do you think the people at the bottom of the page might be celebrating something?
 - If so, could they be celebrating the Emancipation Proclamation?
 - What do you think the Emancipation Proclamation might be?
 - Do you guess that it may be something really good?
 - Something that could make people happy?
 - Something that could make people hopeful?
 - Something that might give people freedom?

 - e. What does it mean to be as "free as any man"?
 - f. Are things now different for Hope's people?
 - g. What has changed?
7. Turn to the page featuring Hope running toward Papa. He is wearing a uniform. He is followed by a horse-drawn covered wagon.
- a. What's happening in this picture?
 - b. Why is Papa wearing a uniform?
 - c. How long has he been gone?
 - d. Papa shouts, "We're free!" What does "being free" mean?
 - e. Has the gift of hope from freedom come to pass?
 - f. How will life improve for Hope and her family, now that they have been freed?
 - i. How are things going to be different for them?
 - ii. How are things going to be the same?

- g. How do you feel when you consider this illustration?
8. Turn to the page featuring Hope and Henry riding in the covered wagon.
- a. Consider Hope's expression. How is she feeling at this moment?
 - b. Where is she going?
 - c. Who is seated in the front of the wagon?
 - d. Hope says that she is taking one last look at her past. What does she mean by this?
 - e. What of the people in the field to the left of the wagon? Have they been freed, yet?
 - f. Hope says that the song in heart is making her smile, the conch song of freedom.
 - i. How do you feel about Hope and her family becoming free?
 - ii. Is your heart smiling, too?

Emancipation Proclamation Timeline

As we left, I took one last look at our past.

Trace key moments in history as they pertain to the eventual signing of the Emancipation Proclamation through the eyes, ears, and heart of a young girl named Hope.

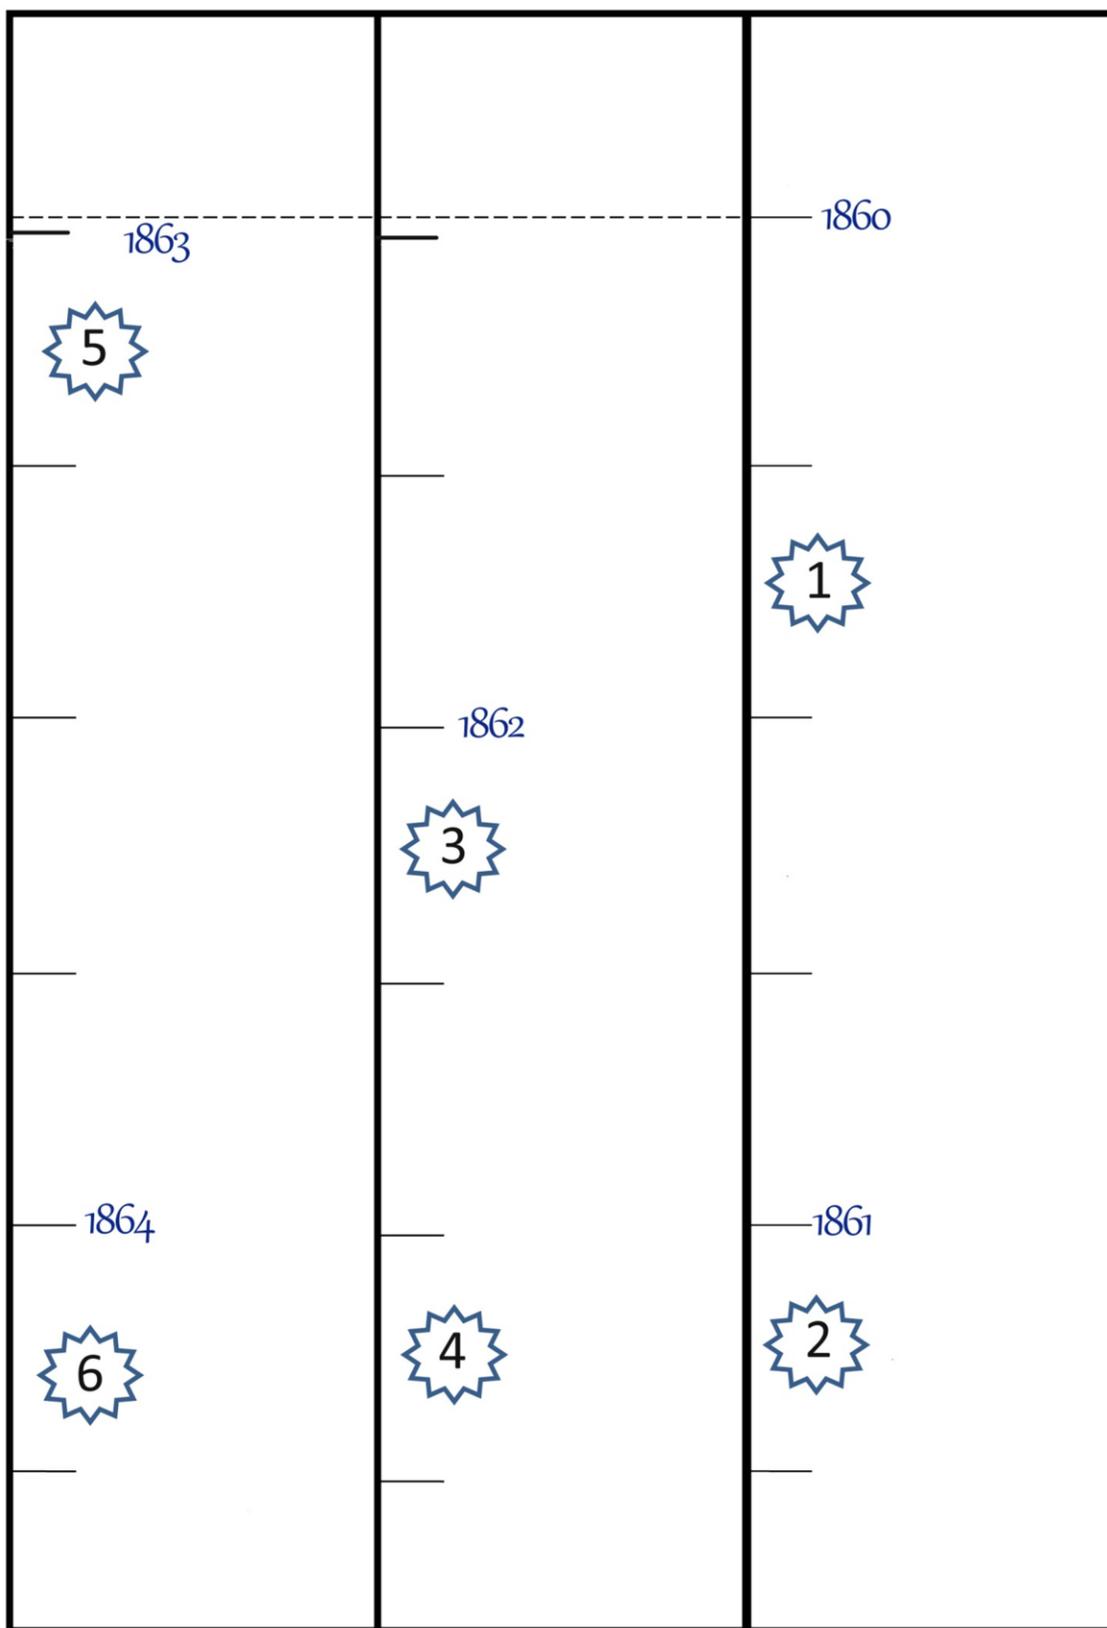

Materials:

- Scissors
- Tape
- Timeline (page 11)
- Event Cards (page 12)
- The book Hope's Gift

Procedure:

- Give Hope's Gift a close read, including the Author's Note.
- Print Timeline and Event Cards.
- Cut out Timeline strips and Event Cards.
- Overlap Timeline strips using dotted line a guide and tape together (See picture below).
- Lay out Timeline on a flat surface.
- Read Event Cards.
- Note the numbers inside the stars printed on each Event Cards and on the Timeline.
- Match the numbers on Event Cards to the appropriate number on the Timeline (See picture below).
- Flip through the pages of Hope's Gift to find the quotes printed on the Event Cards.

1860 - Lincoln Elected as President

1861: The Civil War began

*"Saying goodbye," he whispered,
"is something you never get used to even when you're grown."*

1862: Some enslaved people escaped to Union lines and helped in many ways including being drummers, spies and scouts.

1862: A draft of the Emancipation
Proclamation was printed

*"President Lincoln say he gonna free the slaves on New Year's,"
she whispered with a smile.*

1863: The Emancipation
Proclamation was signed

"Today Lincoln gonna set freedom in motion. Won't be long before we free as any man."

*"That's the sound of freedom, Henry,"
Hope said.
"And nothing can keep it from coming."*

Now Let Me Fly

"The pat of hands clapping and feet stomping echoed through the woods. Viney started singing "Now Let Me Fly." As I danced and sang along, I thought about Papa coming for us and felt like I had wings."

"Now Let Me Fly" is a Negro spiritual originating during the time of slavery in the mid 1800's.

Click HERE for a YouTube rendition of "Now Let Me Fly", performed by RED with KeShauna Dorsey, Yolanda Williams, and Tamesha Pruett.

The Cloze Word Reading Game

Materials:

- Pages 14, 15, and 16
- Pencil or pen
- Markers or crayons

Procedure:

- Print the lyrics for "Now Let Me Fly" found on pages 14 and 15.
- Watch and listen to the YouTube videos, following along with the printed lyrics printed on page 13. Though some lyrics sung by the young performers may vary, the spirit of the message is timeless.
- In the shadowed box printed below the lyrics on page 14, have the students draw their interpretation of the spiritual.
- Using page 15, ask the students to read the lyrics printed and write the words that are missing on the correct line. They may use the lyrics printed on page 14 as a reference, if need be.
- When complete, check their work on the answer sheet found on page 15.

Now Let Me Fly Lyrics

Way down yonder in the middle of the field,
Angel working at the chariot wheel,
Not so particular 'bout working at the wheel,
Just want to see how the chariot feels

Now let me fly, Now let me fly
Let me fly to Mount Zion, Lord, Lord

Well I got a mother in the promised land
Ain't gonna stop till I shake her hand
Not so particular 'bout shaking her hand
Just wanna get to the promised land

Now let me fly, Now let me fly
Let me fly to Mount Zion, Lord, Lord

I heard such a rumbling in the sky
I thought my Lord was passing by
It was the good old chariot drawing nigh
Oh well it shook the earth swept the sky

Now let me fly, Now let me fly
Let me fly to Mount Zion, Lord, Lord

Word Choice: Freedom!

Objective: To write a free verse poem using a selection of sensory adjectives.

Materials:

- Pencil
- Word warm-up sheet (page 18)
- Poem grid (page 19)
- Markers or crayons

Procedure:

- Discuss the meaning of the word emancipation.
- Discuss synonyms of emancipation.
 - Words such as liberate, unbind, release, deliver, free, release, and save
- Discuss the meaning of the word proclamation.
- Discuss synonyms of the word proclaim.
 - Words such as announce, shout out, trumpet, call, and sound off
- In short, the Emancipation Proclamation is synonymous with a freedom shout out!
- Now lead the children in a discussion about sensory aspects of the concept of freedom.
 - Describe what freedom looks like.
 - Describe what freedom smells like.
 - Describe what freedom tastes like.
 - Describe what freedom feels like.
 - Describe how freedom makes you feel.
- After a discussion about the sensory aspects of the concept of freedom, direct the child to the Warm-up Sheet on page 18. Brainstorm as many sensory words as possible beneath the categories listed below.
- In the Poem Grid, choose sensory words from the lists created in the Warm-up Sheet and write them in the spaces provided.
- The completed poem will look something like this:

Dog

Slobbery dog

Licking, smiling dog

Stinky, silly, funny dog

Running, sunning, loving, brown dog

My dog

- Illustrate the poem about freedom in the space provided on the Poem Grid.

Taste Describe how freedom tastes.	Smell Describe how freedom smells.	Touch Describe how freedom feels.	Hear Describe the way freedom sounds.	See Describe what freedom looks like.

Hope's Sound of Freedom

Papa told Hope to place her ear on the conch shell and that she would hear the sound of freedom. Each and every time she did, Hope heard a magical whooshing sound reminding her of the promise of freedom for her people. This sound kept her hopes alive – hope for her father's return and for emancipation. While Hope clung to the belief that the whooshing sound coming from her shell was the sound of freedom, there is actually a scientific reason for the ocean wave -like sound she heard.

Some people suggest that the whoosh coming from the shell is the sound of blood rushing through the blood vessels in your ear. Some people say that the sound is caused by air moving through the shell. Both of these are suggestions are worth considering, but the most believable notion is one involving what is known as ambient noise.

Ambient noise is made of the sounds surrounding us at all times, sounds we aren't even aware were there. And, when you place your ear near the aperture, or the opening of the shell, the waves you hear whooshing inside the shell come from the sounds whirring all around you.

Test the ambient noise theory by trying an easy little experiment. Cup your hand over your ear leaving a small space for sound to enter. Now get really still and breathe slowly. Concentrate and listen carefully. Do you hear a quiet whoosh?

Here's another simple science experiment. Hold a mug to you ear, leaving a space for air and sound to enter. Once again, get really still and breathe slowly. Concentrate and listen carefully. What do you hear? The steady whooshing and swooshing of ocean waves? Ambient noise?

Whatever causes the conch shell's whooshing sound, for Hope the sound represented the song of freedom, and that is all that really matters. Right?

"Nothing can keep freedom from coming," I sang. "Nothing."

Henry's Marbles

Marbles like Henry's can easily be made by rolling bits of clay or wet mud together into balls, then allowing them to dry.

You can also buy inexpensive marbles in just about any store that sell toys. Most of today's marbles are made of glass and come in various sizes and interesting colors.

Chances are that Henry might have played the game of marbles much like the way kids today play the game. It's really easy and lots of fun!

The rules of the game can be as simple or as complicated as you like. The basic premise of the game is to use your thumb as a trigger to shoot a marble, knocking another marble out of a circular boundary.

If you'd like to know more about the great game of marbles, check out the YouTube video and website links posted below.

- Oh, Marbles! The Classic Marbles Game

As you can see, whether you play with clay marbles like Henry's or modern day snazzy cat's eyes shooters, the game is tons of fun. Try it. You'll like it!
